thorough and full investigation of the internal and foreign affairs of this island is made. It must be satisfied that a government in form similar to its own can be sustained here by force of popular will, and not by force of arms; that the financial condition of these islands is sound and prosperous; that the class of inhabitants upon these islands is desirable for citizens of the United States. Again, let us ask what will probably be the terms and conditions upon which the United States would consent to annex this territory if it should desire so to do? All of these islands would be classed together probably the same as any one of the territories of the United States. An organic act will be given for the fundamental law and limit to the government of these islands by the United States Government, provisions of which act will be subordinate and agreeable to the provisions of the constitution of the United States and the amendments thereto, which must be distinctly republican. The general government will be managed and the laws thereof executed and construed by officers appointed by the Administration of the United States, which will probably change and fluctuate with the change of the dominant party there. The local government will be managed by persons chosen for such purpose by an election by all actual citizens of these islands. The qualification of such citizens will be regulated and determined by the Congress of the United States. The government of these islands will be obliged to pay and liquidate its own debts and to pay the expense of its general and local government, and to handle and dispose of all of its public property, and if the United States Government desired property or privileges for its own use, it would purchase them the same as any other public institution, probably paying more for all property needed than it would have to pay therefor if such property or privileges were asked for by the United States of this government while independent. Such, we submit, would probably be the result and condition if annexation should be consummated. Do we want it? The Tribune is clear upon the proposition as to the effect upon the people and industries of this island, and we hope in the near future to see established upon these islands a republican form of government, supported and administered by the popular will of the people, and to see these islands a portion of the United States territory through and by virtue of a favorable treaty of annexation.—Hilo Tribune.

Duly Appreciated.

The Dallas (Tex.) Morning News of the 2d inst. writes:

Prof. J. S. Libornio, leader of the Hawaiian band, was called into the office of the president of the Fair association yesterday morning and given a surprise. In a felicitous speech President Trezevant presented the Hawaiian a beautiful gold medal, suitably engraved, as a token of the appreciation of the Fair management. Prof. Libornio is not a fluent talker of English, but his looks were more eloquent than words could possibly have been. Charles Woolford, manager of the band and glee club, and Leo Wolfson, manager of the privilege department, were present and tendered their warm congratulations to the recipient of the handsome souvenir of the tenth annual meeting of the Texas State Fair. Prof. Libornio is very proud of it, and informed a News reporter that he would ever prize it most highly as a memento of his visit to the sunny south.

The inscription on the medal which is valued at $500 reads:

"Presented to J. S. Libornio, by the Texas State Fair Association, Dallas, 1895."

A Good Result.

The Hospital Flower Society beg to thank all the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly assisted them with their fair of November 26th. The sum realized after all expenses were paid was $611.60. All cake plates left at the hall are now at Mrs. T. Rain Walker's, King street.
